The poem on our first page is published by request of Mrs. J. W. Steel, of this city. Mrs. Steel is an old time Quaker, and the new fashioned way of a fiddle in the church is not in accord with her bias of church music. The sentiment in the poem expresses her ideas on this point. The fiddle has just been introduced into her church as well as the Methodist church, and she thinks it is "just awful."

A lively little fight occurred at the depot Sunday night on the arrival of the West bound passenger train, between Capt. Billy Ahl and Ben Lee Bates. Ben Lee had been paying too much at-tention to Capt. Ahl's daughter of late, and the Captain had given him a warning to desist, and told the young man that if he ever caught him in her com-pany again he would settle with him in a way that he would not forget it. The Captain's daughter had been absent from town and was expected home that night, and Bates made it convenient to be there to meet her. The Captain was there also, and as the young lady stepped off the train Bates rushed up to her to escort her home, and just as he did so the Captain dealt him a stunning blow with his cane. Bates left his girl and at once turned his attention to the old man and for five minutes as pretty a lit-tle tussle as you ever saw followed. In the scuffle Bates threw Ahl to the plat-form and was in the act of jerking out his knife when he was intercepted and pulled him off. Bates got decidedly the best of the fight and walked off with his girl. He was before Mayor Pierce Monday. Bates was fined $5, and costs, and Ahl $1, and the costs.

Cocks preached to a large crowd out on the hill-side. During the intermission at noon the entire debt on the church was raised, thanks to the gifts. In the afternoon the dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. G. N. Jolly, and the house dedicated to the worship of God. In the evening Rev. T. G. Cocks pre-ached again to a well filled house. Al-though the crowd was large the dinner was equal to the occasion, and several baskets full of fragments were carried back home.

PATESVILLE. COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

MARRIAGE IN HIGH CIRCUITS.
Just four weeks ago our village was shaken from center to circumference by one of the grandest weddings that has ever taken place in this part of our State. But on last Tuesday, May 2nd, another of equal importance took place. The contracting parties this time were P. M. Ripton, Gen. agent of the Nation-al Library Association of Chicago, and Miss Tena Jarboe; the popular and ac-complished daughter of Mr. George Jarboe, of our town. It was attended by a large number of citizens of Patesville and vicinity, looking on from a distance; among whom were Misses Annie and Nellie Clark, the accom-plished daughters of Mr. Jas. Clark, near Pettville; and Mr. Charles Marlow, formerly of Patesville, but now in the officiating clergyman, and Rev. W. A. Black, the popular young M. E. clergy-man, of Fordsville and Miss Letitia Pryor, of Patesville, were the attend-ants.

The ceremony was said at about 3 p. m. and was witnessed by an immense crowd considering the inclement weather, rain having fallen at intervals during the day. After the ceremony refreshments were served, and a good number of the guests repaired to their home; while a few remained until Wednesday morning and had a very pleasant time continuing their social chat 'till almost 11 o'clock p. m., which seemed to come entirely too early in the night.

On Wednesday morning the party left for Hawesville, where they arrived about 11:30, and after spending a few minutes in town the bride and groom left for Owensboro, where they expect to remain some time. Everybody seemed to be very sorry to see the honored couple leave Patesville, but Patesville's loss will be Owensboro's gain.

May their lives be long and prosperous. The prospects were numerous and costly.

A Large Asphalt Mine Opened up Near Garfield.
One of the largest asphalt mines in the country was opened up near Garfield, this county, on the Minor Canton farm last week. Major Morris of Louisville has charge of the work and is now run-ning about seventy-five hands. Mr. Morris and other parties took a lease on a lot of land in that section a year ago with the view of opening an asphalt bed, but nothing has been done until last week when a big force of men were put to work, and now we learn they have about four thousand tons ready for ship-ment. That amount has already been contracted for to go on the streets. The mines are about two miles from the Har-dinsburg branch railroad. Mr. Har-dinsburg has the contract for hauling the asphalt and will put eight teams to work at once.
